Looking Backward

With this Folio KPFK draws to the close of four years of broadcasting—our next issue marks the celebration of our fourth anniversary on July 26, 1963. It's much more pleasant to look forward than rearward on an anniversary, but—when you're still on the brink of that occasion—it's rewarding to cast a backward glance.

In many ways our fourth year was the toughest. The early enthusiasm that carried the station from a handful of staffmembers, volunteers, and subscribers to a bustling, good-sized organization seemed to give way, in the fourth year, to a kind of apathy. The fact that we had managed to survive three difficult years—that we were usually there at seven in the morning, day after day—seemed to suggest that our marginal existence was more secure than it was, and the station's growth leveled off during the year. And growing pains developed: studios sagged, ancient but honorable equipment gave out, income lagged as we were taken for granted, staffers' tempers frayed under the daily frustration of trying to produce superior programs under the most difficult of conditions. As a mid-year bonus, the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee chose to investigate us, and we wasted valuable time and energy explaining what our listeners already know: that in spite of all, we remain dedicated to the principles that formed Pacifica Radio and gave it life.

And somehow, we managed not only to survive, but prosper in some ways. We raised our power by half, bringing us thousands of new listeners. We produced plays—both original and classic—such as "The Ascent of F-6," "On Baile's Strand," and "All That Fall." We startled many with the forthright "Live and Let Live," a unique examination of the life of the homosexual. We memorialized the passing of the great Bruno Walter. We investigated at length the work of two of the most important contemporary playwrights, Beckett and Brecht. We sponsor an important exhibition of works by Southern California's leading artists. We shared the best thoughts and inspirations of thousands of political scientists, poets, musicians, critics, sociologists, writers, and artists. In March we were able to say that our Folio contained what we truly believed to be "still the most exciting radio programming in America..." In May we enjoyed the delightful "Pleasure Faire and May Market," and during the Summer began the task of creating the technical facilities we so desperately needed. And we began to develop the resources in our staff and in the community to move forward with confidence and enthusiasm, into our next—and, we are sure, our best year of broadcasting.

We Hope You Will Join Us . . .

She breaks down during the last song, Schubert's "An Die Musik," and Franz Rupp, her faithful accompanist, is left to finish the song by himself. Lehmann really stuck to her guns, too, more's the pity (except for finishing out two prior commitments in Pasadena and Berkeley), for she still had a great voice. Entertaining fans secretly recorded this Town Hall performance.

The question, he argues, is whether the role of the college "will be the noble and distinctive one to which by tradition it is assigned, or whether it will cooperate, because of the value it places on the expectations of society, in achieving the internal decay and international suicide forecast by Arnold Toynbee." 6:30 UNCOMMON SENSE: Things nuclear, by Lawrence Carmen and Steve Kandel.

6:45 COMMENTARY: Caspar Weinberger.

7:00 COLUMBIA'S 1903 OPERA SERIES—I: The first recordings of opera made in America were not, odd though it be, by Victor, but by the Columbia Phonograph Co., precursor of today's Columbia Records. Philip Miller of the New York Public Library collected the entire series, and Columbia's engineers waved their wands. The sound is clear, though pre-electric, but Pablo Casals says he likes it that way. In this first of four Saturday evening airings, we hear Giuseppe Campanari, Suzanne Adams, and Charles Glibert.

7:30 THE BERLIN STORIES: Christopher Isherwood relates his encounters with the mysterious Mr. Norris and the magnetic Sally Bowles from his novels The Last of Mr. Norris and Goodbye to Berlin, now republished in a New Directions paperback. Recommended for buffs of Berlin in the '30's.

12:45 HENRY WOOD PROMENADE CONCERT: An example of the monster concerts which they put on in the summer at London's Albert Hall. The hero of the day is Sir Malcolm Sargent, referred to as "Flash Harry." Everybody on the first floor stands, a living link with the Shakespearean "yard." People in the hall can't hear half as well as we can through the microphones. But they don't care; it's fun. The BBC Symphony follows "Flash" through Rossini's "Semiramide" Overture, Britten's Frank Bridge Variations, Shostakovich's Concerto for Violin, Sibelius' Symphony No. 7, and Tchaikowsky's Francesca da Rimini.

8:00 BERLIOZ' REQUIEM: A special BBC transcription of Sir Thomas Beecham's Albert Hall performance of this work. Sir Thomas is interviewed in the intermission by Wynford Vaughan Thomas.

The Orff, settings of Latin-German poems of roving medieval studentry, is appropriately the beneficiary of an all-out present-day student effort. Mr. Wagner is briefly interviewed at the beginning of the performance.

9:30 THEATER REVIEW

9:45 SERGIU CELIBIDACHE — TWO FIFTHS: Controversy has been the handmaiden of this problematical Italian conductor ever since his sensational early years in Berlin. He refuses to conduct in America, but we've sneaked up on him. To begin settling, or begin defining, or begin spelling, the Celibidache Matter, we spring to its heart by presenting him conducting two major twentieth-century works: Shostakovich's Fifth and Prokofiev's Fifth Symphonies. The Symphony Orchestra of RAI, Turin, performs the former, and Rome's RAI Orchestra plays the latter on these special tapes loaned us by the Italian Radio.

11:15 THE MAN WHO DISTURBED THE PEACE: Alan Marcus, author of the highly-praised new novel Of Streets and Stars (Houghton-Mifflin) reads his short story from Contact magazine.

6:30 UNCOMMON SENSE: Lawrence Carmen and Steve Kandel on fission, fusion and politics.

6:45 COMMENTARY: Lewis Parker Miller.

7:00 COLUMBIA'S 1903 OPERA SERIES—II: More of the first grand opera recordings made in the U.S., with the voices of Antonio Scotti, Marcella Sembrich, and Charles Gilibert.

7:30 PRISONS, PRISONERS, PAROLE: Former San Quentin warden Clinton Duffy in a frank discussion at the University of California.

8:45 OBERON: All the music from Weber's last opera, a singspiel. Hector Berlioz thought very highly of this work; see what you think of what he thought. Hans Mueller-Kray conducts soloists, chorus and the South German Radio Orchestra.

10:30 THE LAST OF THE TOWN CRIERS: Alfie Howard, crier of Lambeth, London, England, talks with Connacht Davis.

10:45 NIGHTSOUNDS—IV: Norman Belkin has edited this KPFA exercise in lunacy.

8:00 A.M. KLEINES BRECHT FESTIVAL: Berliner Ensemble. All the song excerpts performed by this notable group. Brecht's own, scheduled on our recent Brecht Festival. The latter two programs did not arrive in time for their scheduled broadcast. We hear excerpts from Herr Puntila und Sein Knecht Matti (Brecht/Dessau), Paucken und Trompeten (Brecht/Wagner-Regeny) and Die Mutter (Brecht/Eisler). Commentary by Lee Baxandall.

10:00 REPORT TO THE SUBSCRIBER: KPFA general manager Jerome Shore. (Jul 19)

10:15 THE SMUT HUNTERS: Rev. Brooks Walker, a Unitarian-Universalist minister and former KPFA commentator, with a sermon delivered to his Canoga Park congregation in April. Rev. 11:00 THE ART SCENE: Marion Gore interviews artist Louise Nevelson and printer Irwin Hollander of the Tamarind Workshop.

11:30 THE SILENT REVOLUTION—VI: Creative Intelligence, Female. Noted anthropologist Margaret Mead on equality.

12:30 SIEGFRIED: The first complete commercial recording of the third of Wagner's ring operas. This is brilliant post-Tristan music, superphonically staged in Vienna by London Records with all the extra-musical noisemaking (asked for by Wagner, of course) firmly in place. (A4508)

9:00 THE ASCENT OF F-6: Pacifica Players' production of the play by W. H. Auden and Christopher Isherwood. Mr. Isherwood himself is heard as the Abbot; the cast includes Karl Swenson, Joan Tompkins, and Harold Innocent. John Houlton directed. Re-broadcast by request.
